“ I remember a car ride I took with you to a store somewhere, not important, but it must have made an impact on me in some way. Maybe it was just my little kid ideal of the perfect day. The radio played The Entertainer, which is weird, because it was the 70's. It was sunny and hot out and I can remember the smell of the upholstery in the car. Just a little snippet that I think about every now and then throughout my life but it brings a flood of good feelings, or “good vibes” as was the terminology back then. I feel your absence, and I miss you. Take care...

I feel so lucky to have had you in my life. I have never met anyone like you and doubt that I ever will. You will be missed, I will remember you with a smile on my face and love in my heart.
